4 Ways To Advise a Friend

AH, FRIENDSHIP...A DELICATE FLOWER TO BE NURTURED. A TRUE FRIEND ALWAYS LOOKS OUT FOR YOUR INTERESTS, OFFERS A SHOULDER TO CRY ON AND IS ALWAYS THERE WITH KIND WORDS OF ADVICE. BUT WHAT IF THAT ADVICE SEEMS MORE FOR THEIR BENEFIT THAN YOURS! HERE ARE FOUR SITUATIONS THAT SHOULD GET YOU THINKING: "IS MY PAL REALLY A PAL!"

GARDENING

If your friend says, "I like my garden wild," what he really means is, "I don't trust you with those shears!"

SAVINGS

If your friend says, "I'll look after your money – I know where to get a high rate of interest," what he really means is, "What's yours is mine!"

PERSONAL PRESENTATION

If your friend says, "You should look after yourself more," what he really means is, "I won't be seen dead outside with you!"

DIY

If your friend says, "I'll help you with that," what he really means is, "I want to show off all my new tools!"

Refracting Light

We're not saying Morocco Mole has bad eyesight, but if he had a pair of wings he could hang out with bats...

LOOK OUT, MOROCCO!

WHAT'S THE MATTER, INSPECTOR?

MOROCCO! YOU MUST WEAR YOUR GLASSES!

I'M FINE, INSPECTOR, I CAN SEE PERFECTLY WELL WITHOUT THEM!

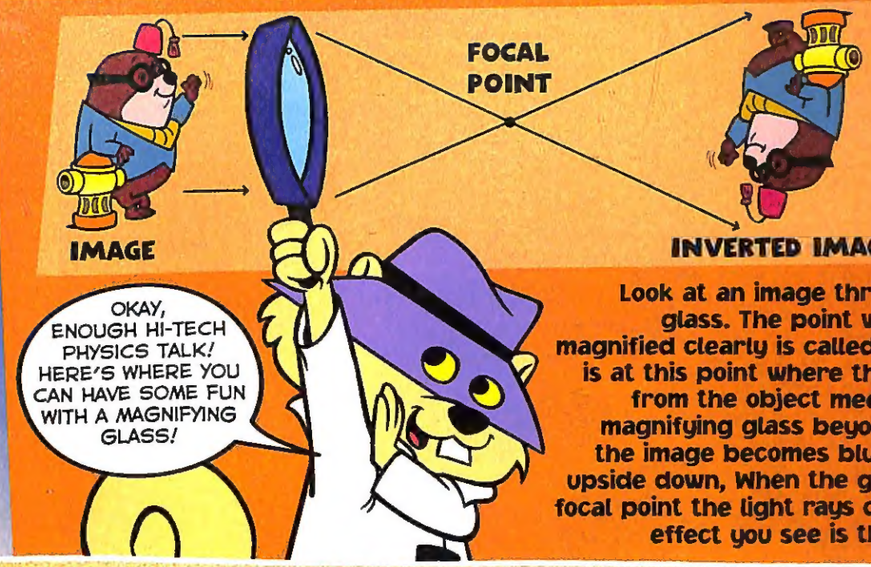
LENSES ARE USED TO CORRECT VISION. LOOK AT THIS BAG OF WATER, WHAT CAN YOU SEE THROUGH IT?

I CAN SEE YOU, BUT YOU LOOK A BIT WEIRD! SORRY, INSPECTOR!

THAT'S RIGHT, MOROCCO, THE PLASTIC BAG CHANGED THE DIRECTION OF THE LIGHT. THIS CHANGE OR CORRECTION TO THE DIRECTION OF THE LIGHT IS CALLED REFRACTION.

IN THIS CASE, IT MADE ME LOOK STRANGE. UNDERSTAND? HMM, I'LL TRY TO EXPLAIN IT ANOTHER WAY...



FOCAL POINT
IMAGE
INVERTED IMAGE
OKAY, ENOUGH HI-TECH PHYSICS TALK! HERE'S WHERE YOU CAN HAVE SOME FUN WITH A MAGNIFYING GLASS!

Look at an image through a magnifying glass. The point where the object is magnified clearly is called the focal point. It is at this point where the light rays travel from the object meet. If you move the magnifying glass beyond the focal point, the image becomes blurred and appears upside down. When the glass goes past the focal point the light rays cross over and the effect you see is the inverted image.

CONCENTRATION POINT

Draw your favourite Cartoon Network character on a piece of wood. Hold your magnifying glass over the character so the sun's rays make a focal point of light on the wood.

This concentrated light will start to burn the wood. Slowly take the point of light around the pencil outline and you will have your very own wood burned character!

Warning: Never look at the sun with a magnifying glass. It is very dangerous!

INVERTED IMAGE

Place a drawing behind a glass of water. Look at it through the glass. It looks the wrong way round, doesn't it? Now try moving the picture away slowly and you'll see it disappear in the other direction! This is because the light rays are going through the glass at several different points and making the image look as if it is moving!

A COW & CHICKEN OF A COMPETITION!

A nice house surrounded by a sparkling white fence. A loving father, doting mother and two offspring. The perfect family. Well, as perfect as you can get when your children are a 460-pound bovine and a cranky rooster with attitude.

Cow thinks Chicken is tops. She can't understand why he always tries to avoid her at school. But a chicken's got an image to think about, yeah? And it's just ain't happening if you're constantly being smothered by udders.

Chicken by name but certainly not nature, his cavalier attitude, along with the physical disadvantages of belonging to the poultry family often lands him in trouble. Supercow, Cow's fearless Spanish speaking alter-ego is never far away though, to save chicken from becoming a roast dinner.

To celebrate the screening of twenty brand new episodes of Cow and Chicken on Cartoon Network, we have an egg-stra special competition for you! 5 lucky readers will each win a Cow and Chicken Picture Frame, Cartoon Network Pac-A-Mac, Cartoon Network Watch and an exclusive and snazzily designed Cartoon Network camera! Miss out and you'll be spitting feathers!

Enter now! All you need do is answer the following question:

WHAT IS THE NAME OF COW'S ALTER-EGO?

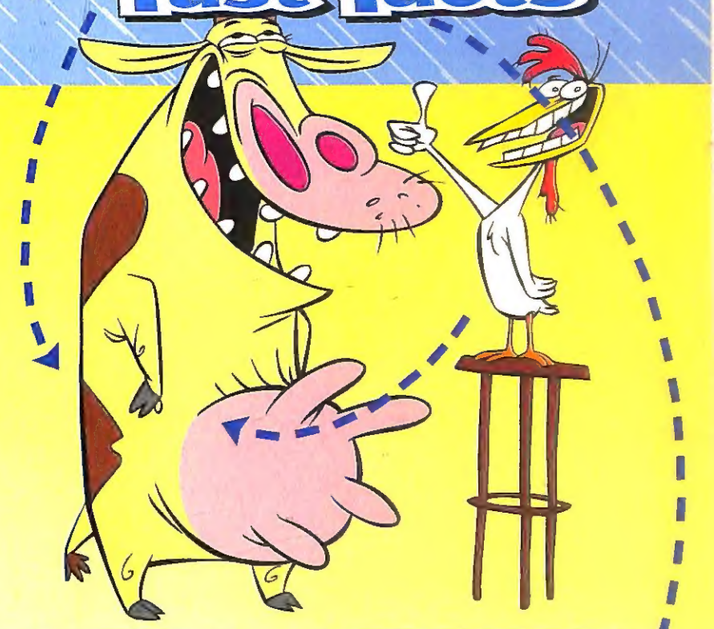
COW and CHICKEN fast facts



This issue we present the all-time lowdown on Cartoon Network's surreal siblings, Cow and Chicken!

1. The inspiration for Cow and Chicken came from 38-year-old animator David Feiss who was thinking of a bedtime story for his daughter. The result? An amusing tale about a funny girl cow and big brother chicken who live in the suburbs with their human parents!

2. Can you ever remember seeing Cow and Chicken's parents' bodies? No? That's because they don't have an upper body to speak of!

3. Cow is big-boned and big hearted, aged 7 and weighs a heifer-like 460 pounds standing 6 foot tall!

4. Chicken is a scrawny little thing with barely a forkful of meat on him! 11-years-old, he weighs 4 pounds and is 11 inches tall. With a rule-the-roost personality he has an attitude to crow about!

5. Cow's alter-ego Super Cow or Supervaca is forever bailing Chicken out and can only speak Spanish!

6. A 'Rebel Without A Clue', Chicken enjoys using big adult words - but doesn't have a clue what they mean. "Ambivalent" and "Inimitable" are particular favourites of his.

7. The duo love snaffling plates of repulsive meatloaf, followed by ice-cream con-carne. (Mmm, maybe we'll pass on that dinner invite then.)

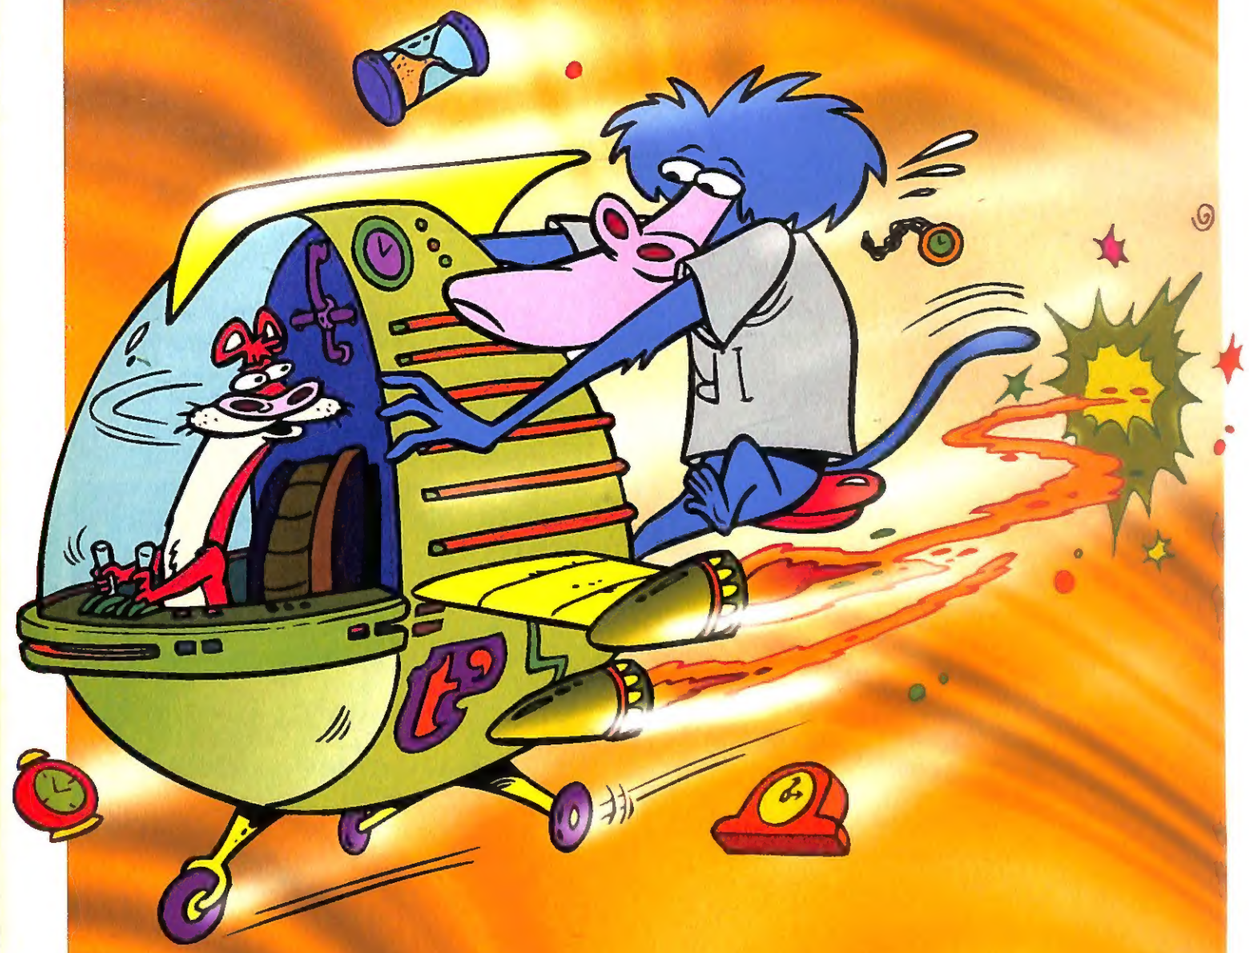
GLADIATORS GO!

THROUGHOUT HISTORY BRAVE SOULS HAVE TRAVELLED THOUSANDS OF MILES AND CROSSED VAST OCEANS IN SEARCH OF UNDISCOVERED LANDS. SOME FOUND FAME AND FORTUNE. OTHERS RAN OUT OF DIGESTIVE BISCUITS AND RETURNED HOME IN SHAME. JOIN US NOW, INTREPID VOYAGER, ALONG WITH I AM WEASEL AND I R BABOON AS WE TAKE A TRIP THROUGH THE SANDS OF TIME IN SEARCH OF...



...Great Adventures

The first people to record their travels were the Cretans, (that's Cretans not cretins. You know, as in people who come from Crete!). This small population enthusiastically embraced the classical equivalent of package holidays and set off in their little boats to sail the seas. Hundreds of years later modern European explorers followed in their footsteps. Their travels took them as far as India in 1498.

THIS IS THE NEW WORLD!

In 1492, Christopher Columbus thought he was the first to arrive in the Far East. In actual fact he was the first tourist to reach the shores of America. ("I R Baboon know where America is. America in Hollywood!".) As Times Square and the Statue of Liberty hadn't been invented yet Columbus had very little to do and he simply took satisfaction in the knowledge that his discovery destroyed the myth that the Earth was flat.

BIG, BIG WORLD

In 1520, the explorer Ferdinand Magellan discovered a channel of water between North America and South America which links the Pacific Ocean and the Atlantic Ocean – the Panama Canal. (I R get hat, I R get hat!) After Magellan's death his crew made their way home to prove their world WAS round. With a round world there was so much more to discover! New lands, lost cities – an explorer's dream!

COLD CLIMATES

The cold areas of the world have always intrigued explorers. (Cease your whining, man, it's only a little chilly.) After a hundred years of failed attempts by explorers, one succeeded in setting foot on the North Pole on 1909 – American Robert Peary. Two years later the Norwegian Ronald Amundsen arrived at the South Pole.

THE GOLD CITY

One of the oldest legends of South America is the City of Gold. The king of the Incas sprinkled his body with gold and stood in the middle of a lake where his subjects threw him treasures as an offering. ("I Am Weasel recognises a lucrative enterprise when he sees one!") A few explorers tried to find this lost Gold City. One of the unsuccessful explorers was German Nicholas Federmann. In the 16th Century he set off for the city by exploring the Andes. He never found the city and returned to Europe, a broken man. Another explorer was Hiram Bingham from North America. In 1910 he found Machu Picchu, the lost city of the Incas in an unexplored area of the Peruvian Andes. ("I R Baboon wanna go there, I R Baboon wanna meet Inkies!")

INTO AFRICA

Exploration of India provoked a European expedition to explore Africa. In the 15th Century, explorers from Portugal, Spain, France, England and the Netherlands competed with each other to discover new areas of Africa. The bravest of the explorers drove into the dark forests in search of secrets and mysteries they believed were hidden there. One of the most mysterious places in Africa was the river Nile, the longest river in Africa, and found by the Europeans in 1858. ("I R want swim. You want swim, Weasel? Do ya, Weasel? Do ya?")

Scooby-Doo!™ in The Imperial Lake

LAKE TITICACA – A MIST-SHROUDED BODY OF WATER THAT LIES DEEP IN THE HEART OF THE ANDES MOUNTAIN RANGE. ANCIENT CIVILISATIONS SUCH AS THE INCAS WERE BORN HERE. TODAY THE AREA PLAYS HOST TO MANY VISITORS BUT LEGENDS STILL TELL OF STRANGE AQUATIC CREATURES – GIANT FROGS WITH STRANGE POWERS – THAT EMERGE FROM THE DEPTHS OF THE LAKE WHEN THE RAINS COME...

SO, WHERE IS IT?

When trying to find Lake Titicaca, head 15kms north of the city of La Paz. It's the highest lake in the world (3,812 metres above sea level) and the second largest lake in South America (8,333 square kilometres). There are 41 islands on it to explore, any of which could prove to be the dank, muddy home of the monstrous frogs...

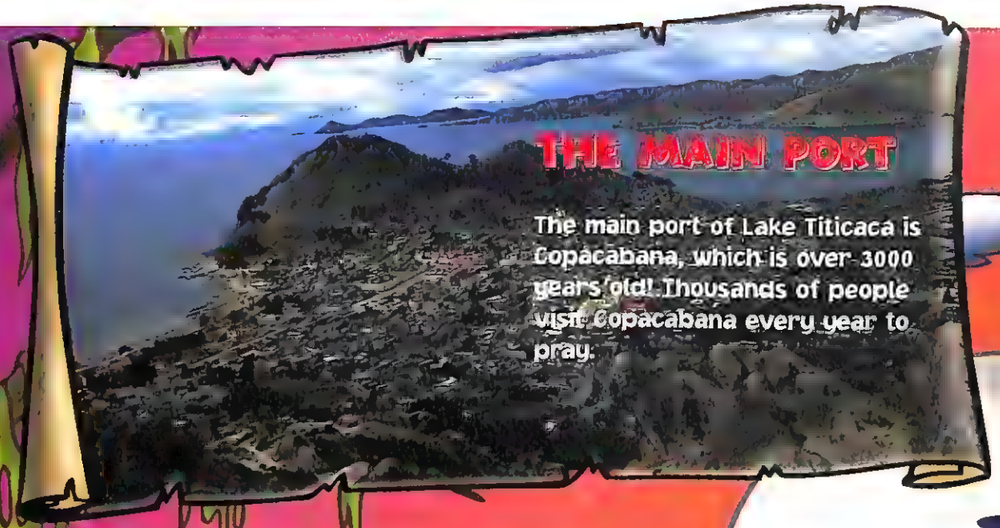
ISLAND OF THE SUN

According to legend, Wiracocha, who created the town of Tiahuanaco, caused such a great storm that the sun was forced to descend from the heavens and hide in the town. Following this, two important people, Manco Kapaj and Mama Ocillo, were born and they created the Inca Empire which ruled the land from Ecuador to Chile.

After the sun chose to hide in Tiahuanaco, the Inca people worshipped the newly-named Island of the Sun. The water was considered holy and was thought of as a source of eternal youth. (You paying attention, Shaggy?) The Incas would give treasure as an offering to the Island of the Sun.

MAGICAL FROGS

Oh yes, that's what we started with. Though there's no proof of Giant Frogs, it is thought that the legends arose because the lake is home to many different frog species. It is believed the frogs bring rain and many are collected and taken into the mountains to take part in a special rain-making ritual.



THE MAIN PORT

The main port of Lake Titicaca is Copacabana, which is over 3000 years old! Thousands of people visit Copacabana every year to pray.

TYPICAL CUSTOMS

The Aymaran people still live on the island and speak their native language and observe the ancient customs. They make boats with reeds that grow on the lake's shore and use them to sail and fish on the lake. The Aymarans are excellent at catching fish, handy really seeing as their diet consists of the lake's scrumptious fish!

ANCIENT RUINS

In case the ancient history feel to this piece had escaped you, Tiahuanaco has an ancient ruined city as well! The city existed between 200 and 1100 BC and was an important cultural and religious centre. The ruins are a great archaeolgoical site as they show the ancient worship of God Sun and Goddess Moon. A recent archaeolgoical dig uncovered what is thought to be a Tiahuanaco cemetery. Scooby, where are you going? I only said 'cemetery'!

THE COAST

The Lake's coast holds hundreds of bays where cities, towns and villages make up another 70,000 inhabitants.

SACRED MONOLITHS

A monolith is a single block of stone that has been sculpted into a monument. Only three of the original 45 monoliths still survive today. The greatest one was built in honour of Mother Earth. This monument has 175 stone faces carved into the walls.
